ORDER
This case arises out of Plaintiff's employment termination, allegedly in retaliation for protected speech he made to an officer who responded to Plaintiff's report of a crime. The Court has granted summary judgment to that officer on the basis of qualified immunity, because it was not clear the speech allegedly retaliated against was on a matter of public concern. (See Order, Apr. 1, 2011, ECF No.53). The three remaining supervisory Defendants have now filed their own Motion for Summary Judgment (ECF No. 52). Dispositive motions were due on March 4, but Defendants filed the present motion on March 11. The Court will grant the motion to extend time and grant the motion.

I. FACTS AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On July 17, 2009, Plaintiff Timothy McIntyre was assaulted outside his residence. (Am. Compl. ¶ 7). Defendant Deputy Robert Stout of the Lyon County Sheriff's Office ("LCSO") responded to the scene, but Plaintiff believed Stout did not take the incident seriously and 1 showed favoritism to the perpetrator. (Id. ¶ 8). Plaintiff criticized Stout's handling of the 2 situation (Id.). On July 18, 2009, Stout contacted an unidentified person at the Nevada

 3 Department of Corrections ("NDOC"), where Plaintiff worked, and reported that Plaintiff had 4 been uncooperative, belligerent, and had falsified his statement. (Id. ¶ 7). Plaintiff was fired due 5 to Stout's report. (Id. ¶ 10).

6 The Amended Complaint ("AC") names Stout, Howard Skolnik, Mary Carter, and 7 Gregory Smith as Defendants on three claims under 42 U.S.C. § 1983: (1) First Amendment
 8 retaliation (Carter, Skolnik, and Smith); (2) First Amendment retaliation (Stout); and (3)
 9 Procedural Due Process violations (Carter, Skolnik, and Smith). The Court granted summary
 10 judgment to Stout because there was no evidence adduced that Stout intended to chill Plaintiff's 11 speech, that Plaintiff's speech was actually chilled,¹ or that a person of ordinary firmness would 12 have had his speech chilled by Stout's actions. See Mendocino Envtl. Ctr. v. Mendocino Cnty., 13 14 F.3d 457, 464 (9th Cir. 1994). The Court also found that the speech was not on a matter of 14 public concern and that Stout was entitled to qualified immunity. (See Order 6, Apr. 1, 2011, 15 ECF No. 53). Carter, Skolnik, and Smith have now moved for summary judgment.

16 II. SUMMARY JUDGMENT STANDARDS

17 A court must grant summary judgment when "the movant shows that there is no genuine 18 dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law." Fed. R.
 19 Civ. P. 56(a). Material facts are those which may affect the outcome of the case. See Anderson 20 v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248 (1986). A dispute as to a material fact is genuine if 21 there is sufficient evidence for a reasonable jury to return a verdict for the nonmoving party. See 22 id. A principal purpose of summary judgment is "to isolate and dispose of factually unsupported 23 claims." Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323–24 (1986). In determining summary

 25 ¹It is undisputed that Plaintiff's speech was not in fact chilled, but that he complained to Stout's superiors about Stout's actions.

1 judgment, a court uses a burden-shifting scheme:

2 When the party moving for summary judgment would bear the burden of proof at 3 trial, it must come forward with evidence which would entitle it to a directed verdict 4 if the evidence went uncontested at trial. In such a case, the moving party has the initial burden of establishing the absence of a genuine issue of fact on each issue material to its case.

5 C.A.R. Transp. Brokerage Co. v. Darden Rests., Inc., 213 F.3d 474, 480 (9th Cir. 2000)
 6 (citations and internal quotation marks omitted). In contrast, when the nonmoving party bears 7 the burden of proving the claim or defense, the moving party can meet its burden in two ways:
 8 (1) by presenting evidence to negate an essential element of the nonmoving party's case; or (2) 9 by demonstrating that the nonmoving party failed to make a showing sufficient to establish an 10 element essential to that party's case on which that party will bear the burden of proof at trial.

11 See Celotex Corp., 477 U.S. at 323–24. If the moving party fails to meet its initial burden, 12 summary judgment must be denied and the court need not consider the nonmoving party's 13 evidence. See Adickes v. S.H. Kress & Co., 398 U.S. 144, 159–60 (1970).

14 If the moving party meets its initial burden, the burden then shifts to the opposing party
 15 to establish a genuine issue of material fact. See Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co. v. Zenith Radio 16 Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 586 (1986). To establish the existence of a factual dispute, the opposing 17 party need not establish a material issue of fact conclusively in its favor. It is sufficient that “the 18 claimed factual dispute be shown to require a jury or judge to resolve the parties’ differing 19 versions of the truth at trial.” T.W. Elec. Serv., Inc. v. Pac. Elec. Contractors Ass’n, 809 F.2d 20 626, 631 (9th Cir. 1987). In other words, the nonmoving party cannot avoid summary judgment 21 by relying solely on conclusory allegations that are unsupported by factual data. See Taylor v.
 22 List, 880 F.2d 1040, 1045 (9th Cir. 1989). Instead, the opposition must go beyond the assertions 23 and allegations of the pleadings and set forth specific facts by producing competent evidence that 24 shows a genuine issue for trial. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(e); Celotex Corp., 477 U.S. at 324.

25 At the summary judgment stage, a court’s function is not to weigh the evidence and

1 determine the truth, but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial. See Anderson, 477
 2 U.S. at 249. The evidence of the nonmovant is “to be believed, and all justifiable inferences are 3 to be drawn in his favor.” Id. at 255. But if the evidence of the nonmoving party is merely 4 colorable or is not significantly probative, summary judgment may be granted. See id. at 249–50.

5 III. ANALYSIS

6 Plaintiff alleges the remaining Defendants are employed by NDOC at some level of 7 management, (see Am. Compl. ¶ 3), and that “Carter, Smith, and/or Skolnik placed Plaintiff on 8 administrative leave and terminated or caused the termination of Plaintiff’s employment” 9 because of Stout’s report, (see id. ¶ 9). Plaintiff was terminated as a probationary employee but 10 argues he was not probationary because an unidentified person once told him that he was not a 11 probationary employee, and because he had only resigned in June 2009 for a single day before 12 rescinding his resignation as permitted under “State law,” which he does not further specify. (See 13 id. ¶¶ 6, 10–11).² Plaintiff believes his termination was retaliation for the complaint he made to 14 Lyon County about Stout and for his having previously temporarily resigned from NDOC in 15 June 2009. (See id. ¶¶ 6, 10).

16 Plaintiff does not allege in the AC, or in opposition to the present motion, which 17 Defendants made the decision to fire him. But even assuming all three of the remaining 18 Defendants were involved directly in Plaintiff’s termination, Defendants are entitled to summary 19 judgment because dispositive issues are precluded from relitigation. Defendants adduce the 20 Findings of Fact, Conclusions of Law and Decision (the “Appeal Order”) entered against 21 Plaintiff by Administrative Hearing Officer Bill Kockenmeister. (See Appeal Order, July 6,

23 ²Plaintiff likely means Nev. Rev. Stat. § 284.381 (1981), which states “Once a[public]
 24 employee’s written resignation is accepted by the employee’s appointing authority, the employee 25 may not revoke the resignation, regardless of the effective date set forth in it, if 3 or more working days have elapsed since its acceptance, unless the appointing authority approves the revocation.”

1 2010, ECF No. 52-1, at 2). After examining the same evidence currently before this Court and 2 noting that Plaintiff had filed a lawsuit in Lyon County asserting the same claims,³ 3 Kockenmesiter found that Plaintiff was a probationary employee, that he had been terminated in 4 significant part due to the incident with Stout, and that he had not been terminated for exercising 5 his right to free speech on any matter of public concern, but for unbecoming conduct and neglect 6 of duty by wrongfully displaying his badge at the scene with Stout and refusing to cooperate by 7 filing a written statement. (See id. 10). Kockenmeister therefore dismissed Plaintiff's 8 termination appeal. (See id. 11).

9 Since filing the present lawsuit, Plaintiff has petitioned for judicial review of the Appeal
10 Order in state court in Carson City. (See Petition, Jan. 3, 2011, ECF No. 52-2, at 2). The Court 11 finds that the parallel proceedings do not preclude the § 1983 claims directly in this case, but 12 they preclude certain issues and therefore make the § 1983 claims unviable. An administrative 13 order or decision containing findings of fact and conclusions of law is a final decision that may 14 be judicially reviewed under Nevada's Administrative Procedure Act. Dickinson v. Am. Med.
15 Response, 186 P.3d 878, 884 (Nev. 2008) (citing Nev. Rev. Stat. § 233B.125). The findings of 16 fact in the Appeal Order, although they may be overcome in the pending state court appeal of 17 that order, currently preclude relitigation of the issues of whether Plaintiff was a probationary 18 employee or whether he was terminated because of protected speech. Because Plaintiff is 19 collaterally estopped from relitigating these issues (issue preclusion), Defendants are entitled to 20 summary judgment as a factual matter on the First Amendment and Procedural Due Process 21 claims that necessarily depend on the precluded issues, even though the § 1983 claims 22 themselves are not res judicata as a matter of law (claim preclusion). The Court will therefore 23 grant the motion for summary judgment.

25 ³Such a lawsuit may preclude the § 1983 claims directly, but Defendants adduce no evidence of the suit.

1 If Plaintiff were to prevail in his state court appeal on the relevant issues, he could then 2 move for relief from judgment under Rule 60(b)(5) and reopen the present case. However, it is 3 unlikely he could prevail on the merits. In order to find a police officer liable for a First 4 Amendment retaliation claim, a plaintiff must show that the officer “by his actions . . . deterred 5 or chilled [the plaintiff’s] political speech and such deterrence was a substantial or motivating
6 factor in [the officer’s] conduct” Sloman v. Tadlock, 21 F.3d 1462, 1469 (9th Cir. 1994) 7 (citing Mendocino Envtl. Ctr. v. Mendocino Cnty., 14 F.3d 457, 464 (9th Cir. 1994)). “The 8 defendant’s intent is an element of the claim.” Mendocino, 14 F.3d at 464.

9 The complaint about Stout’s behavior that Plaintiff made to the LCSO is irrelevant to the 10 retaliation claim, because it is not disputed that Plaintiff made this complaint after Stout had 11 already reported the incident to Plaintiff’s employer. There is no evidence Plaintiff engaged in 12 anything resembling political speech before Stout reported the incident to plaintiff’s employer.
13 Before Stout reported the incident, the only speech Plaintiff had engaged in was: (1) his private 14 complaint to Stout himself that he wasn’t taking Plaintiff’s criminal complaint seriously; and (2) 15 his swiping his written statement away from Stout in a symbolic expression of his disgust with 16 Stout’s handling of his criminal complaint.

17 First, Stout testified at his deposition that Plaintiff had made a false report to the police.
18 Such speech is not protected by the First Amendment, and Stout was free to report it without fear 19 of liability for “chilling” it. Second, the forcible taking from an officer of a form upon which 20 one has made a statement is not protected speech. In fact, such an act could potentially 21 constitute disorderly conduct, obstruction of justice/investigation, or even a common-law battery
22 supporting nominal damages. Plaintiff does not deny swiping away the report in his declaration, 23 but only asserts that he was not belligerent and did not lie. Third, there is no evidence Stout 24 reported the incident based on Plaintiff’s political opinions, but only based on his actions.
25 Fourth, Plaintiff produces no evidence supporting the intent element of the claim. The only

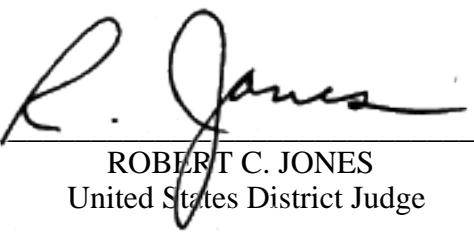

1 evidence available on this point is Stout's deposition testimony that he did not in fact intend that 2 Plaintiff even get "written up," much less terminated, but only that he wanted to bring Plaintiff's 3 behavior to the attention of NDOC because he thought it deserved a verbal reprimand. There is 4 no evidence supporting an inference that Stout reported the incident in order to chill a possible
5 complaint to the LCSO about Stout's handling of the investigation, and in fact Plaintiff made 6 precisely such a complaint. There is therefore no question of fact that no actual chilling of 7 speech occurred. If no chilling occurred, or if a person of "ordinary firmness" would not have 8 been silenced from future speech, there is no retaliation claim. Mendocino, 192 F.3d at 1300. A 9 person of ordinary firmness would not likely have been prevented from complaining about the 10 conduct of investigations in the future based on Stout's reporting Plaintiff's behavior at the scene 11 to Plaintiff's employer.
